

AFEPA Advisory Board

The AFEPA Advisory Board consists of professionals that are familiar with and work on agricultural, environmental and food-related issues world-wide. The Board meets biennially and consists of the following members:

- Alan Matthews (Professor Emeritus of European Agricultural Policy in the Department of Economics at Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland)
- Jonathan Brooks (Honorary Senior Research Fellow at the University of Exeter and Adjunct Professor of International Economics at SAIS Europe)
- Jesús Antón (Head of the Productivity - Sustainability - Resilience benchmarking unit in the Agriculture and Resource Policies Division in OECD's Trade and Agriculture Directorate)
- Felix Ankomah Asante (Pro Vice-Chancellor (Research, Innovation and Development) and Professor at the Institute of Statistical, Social & Economic Research (ISSER), Accra, Ghana)
- Eleanor Gardner & Dureti Guyo (AFEPA Alumni)
- Fabian Gruetzner (student representative intake 22/24)

The Board has the following tasks:

- advising the AFEPA consortium on the structure and content of the academic curriculum, including summer schools,
- suggesting the AFEPA consortium in the use of online resources and learning methods,
- assisting the AFEPA consortium and Master's programme in strengthening relations with the professional world,
- contributing to the quality assessment of the AFEPA Master's programme,
- providing strategic suggestions to make the AFEPA Master's programme even more relevant to the challenges that the agricultural and food sector as well as populations in rural areas are facing now and in the future.
